

FSU Concert Choir to Perform at SCC

The Fayetteville State University Concert Choir will perform in the Southeastern Community College Auditorium on Wednesday, Feb. 29., at 7 p.m. in celebration of African American History Month. Admission is free of charge.

The choir will present a broad repertoire of spirituals, traditional and contemporary gospel music, and formally composed works that reflect the joy, sorrow, and celebration of the rich and varied traditions of African American choral music.

The choir, under the direction of Denise Murchison Payton, performs for many FSU ceremonial activities, presents seasonal programs, fulfills state and local alumni engagements, and is beginning to travel throughout North Carolina performing concerts as part of its touring season.

“Southeastern enjoys a close and special relationship with Fayetteville State University, and we are excited about this unique opportunity to have their talented student musicians perform for our students, faculty, staff and community,” said Barbara Campbell, student activities coordinator.
